Dear Sir,
Dear Madam,

We have the honour to announce the 10th European Congress on Tropical Medicine and International Health, taking place at the Flanders Meeting and Convention Center in Antwerp, Belgium on October 16 - 20, 2017.

On the occasion of its 20th anniversary, the congress will be held for the very first time in the city of Antwerp, home of the Institute for Tropical Medicine since 1931.

Around 2,000 of the world’s most renowned scientists and experts on tropical medicine and international health gather every two years at this unique event to discuss the recent progress and achievements in their field.

As the world faces unseen waves of migration and movement, it is on the crossroads of a new era in global health, with very different challenges and levels of change. Not only are health and development solutions for the neediest populations at stake, but also will the world have to deal increasingly with transition and movement of tropical diseases and global health issues in all directions.

The congress will reflect on these transitions and their consequences for the global health challenges of tomorrow, encourage debate and discussion, and provide a platform to communicate how we are all contributing to more effective responses to global health crises.

It offers the perfect platform too for transitions in public-private partnerships, policy dialogue and the corporate world’s response to the current and future state of affairs. Scientists, NGOs, public and private health experts, even politicians will find themselves in the perfect setting to exchange ideas and solutions alike for the health challenges of the world of tomorrow.

Looking forward to seeing many of you in October 2017 in Antwerp.

Bruno Gryseels, Director ITM
Jean-Christophe Donck, General Manager ITM
Ann Van Gyseghem, Event manager ITM

The Institute for Tropical Medicine Antwerp (ITM)

We Learn, Know, Do For A Healthy World

Tropical diseases, HIV/AIDS, tuberculosis and poor health care affect the lives of billions of people around the world. The Institute of Tropical Medicine (ITM) in Antwerp advances the medical sciences which can improve their fate, through fundamental and applied research, advanced education and the provision of expert services.

Learn

At ITM, researchers, medical doctors, veterinarians and nurses from all over the world specialise in tropical medicine and public health. In a stimulating international environment, they take post-graduate master, PhD and specialist expert courses in English or French. The courses stimulate research-mindedness, independent learning and the exchange of experiences.

Know

Our innovative and interdisciplinary research focuses on Pathogens, Patients and Populations - the "3 P's". ITM researchers improve our understanding of tropical diseases, and develop better methods for their diagnosis, treatment and prevention. Others study the organisation and management of health care and disease control in regions where means are limited, but needs are huge. We also pay attention to the health of animals, with a focus on the diseases they spread to humans.

Do

Each year, we vaccinate tens of thousands of travellers, and provide care to those who return from abroad with an illness. As a reference centre for tropical diseases, public health and HIV/AIDS, we also deliver a range of other expert services in Belgium and collaborate with partner organisations across the globe. We develop and validate diagnostic tests for infectious diseases and perform clinical trials for new or improved treatments. Thirteen ITM laboratories are recognised as national or international reference centres.

Be-cause Health

Be-cause Health is a Belgian platform for International Health that unites academic institutes, services and schools for public health, development organisations and NGOs as well as government services around international healthcare. It aims at strengthening the role and the effectiveness of all actors in the Belgian development cooperation to make quality health care accessible worldwide, through mutual agreement, coordination, and activities that go beyond organisations.

Be-cause Health delegated the task of organizing the ECTMIH congress in 2017 to the Institute for Tropical Medicine Antwerp (ITM).

Federation of European Societies for Tropical Medicine and International Health (FESTMIH)

The Federation was founded in 1995 at Hamburg, during the first European Conference on Tropical Medicine. Fifteen European countries are currently represented on the Federation Council by their respective national societies. FESTMIH provides a strong platform for collaboration toward common goals with sister societies and colleagues in the south.

The objectives of FESTMIH are to build upon the interdisciplinary expertise of the national Societies in Europe, for developing European collaboration and North-South partnership towards health development in the tropics, in respect of regional specificities.

The Federation wants specifically to promote harmonisation of health strategies and recommendations related to developing countries, emergency situations and international travellers, to seek the advice from overseas partners for pertinent identification of their health and research priorities, to foster the formation in the tropics of new scientific societies dealing with health sciences, to encourage European harmonisation of training in tropical medicine, and to organise in Europe regular conferences on tropical medicine and international health, as a platform for debate on European research and cooperation in international health.

FESTMIH’s is co-publisher of the periodical Journal “Tropical Medicine and International Health” (TM&IH) and has become one of the leading journals in its field.

The Federation is a member of the World Federation of Academic Institutions for Global Health; it is also a member of the European Academic Global Health Alliance where FESTMIH’s president is also a member of the executive board. The Federation is in close collaboration with the periodical Tropical Medicine and International Health and has established links with the European Schools of Tropical Medicine (Trop Med Europ).

With a history that dates back from the 2nd century, Antwerp built a solid reputation as a rich and strategic city at different points in history. The city started developing an ever more modern port infrastructure in the second half of the 20th century and by the 1990s it rebranded itself as world-class centre of avant-garde fashion and culture, competing with the biggest cities in Europe.

Next to its status as port and fashion city, it has become the world’s diamond centre, with 80% of all the world diamond trade passing through its gateways.

Lifestyle and luxury are an important part of the city’s culture. From its medieval heart, over its 19th century “South” quarter near the Institute for Tropical Medicine, to its modern shopping district, Antwerp is a city that takes care of its buildings, offering its residents a historic core with a thriving contemporary vibe. The city’s elegant streets boast delicate restaurants, fashionable boutiques, designer galleries and welcoming bars and cafés, which add to the wonderful mix of culture and pleasure.

ECTMIH2017 is held at the brand new Flanders Meeting and Convention Center, with the exquisite Queen Elisabeth Concert Hall at its core. It is adjacent to the Antwerp Zoo and ideally located next to the city’s Central Station, one of the most beautiful railway stations in the world. The location of this venue offers the delegates the opportunity to sample the pleasures of this wonderful city while reflecting on the future of tropical medicine and international health in an ever-changing world.

The new Flanders Meeting and Convention Center promises to become the absolute standard in Antwerp and Belgium for conferences, trade fairs and exhibitions, seminars, national and international conventions, as well as various corporate events.

The Queen Elisabeth Hall is the beating heart of the convention center. It will have 2000 seats which is a tremendous advantage for many organisers. It will be equipped with the perfect acoustics and the latest technical sound facilities, as it is also the homebase of the Royal Flemish Philharmonic.

Flanders Meeting & Convention Center Antwerp will be a newly constructed building with modern amenities and technical facilities, and offer increased capacity and ideal logistics. An international attraction with unique benefits in a splendid setting, with sustainable materials and low-energy facilities.

The latest technical and logistical facilities were chosen for this new temple of the Meeting Industry. At the same time, the necessary respect is being shown for the adjacent, listed monument of Antwerp ZOO, and the historically valuable Marble Room, Darwin Room, Verlat Room and the Winter Garden.
